How to Use the Cross Reference Page Index

The publishers have devised a copyrighted system of cross reference that will prove of invaluable aid to the reader and student of the Bible.

Small superior letters and figures (^a, ^b, ^c, 1, 2, 3) etc., correspond to the letters and figures in the center column of each page, which in turn refer the reader to another book, chapter, and verse of the Bible. When the reader turns to this reference or group of references he will find further material concerning the text that he is reading, or clarification of the text.

Here is an example of how to use the cross reference:

* In ^athe beginning God created the

The superior letter (^a) refers to the center column reference: Ps. 102:25. 615.

When the reader turns to page 615 he will find Psalm 102, Verse 25, which is another reference to the Lord's creation of the earth.

Note: A star ★ immediately following a verse in the Old Testament, indicates that in the concurrent opinion of scholars and theologians, the verse embodies a prophetic reference to Christ.
